CHRISTY KLUG

Christy Klug was born in Germany and moved between England, Canada and the United States as a child. She is largely self-taught and draws inspiration from an early interest in stained glass design, which she studied at the School of the Museum of Fine Arts in Boston. She works with enamel as a canvas for her line drawings and mark making.

ARTIST STATEMENT

My intent is to blur the line between fine art and craft; to marry my passion for line and mark making with the rigors and discipline required to craft wearable art. I want my work to be intimate, gracious, feminine and subtle, the kind of timeless work that becomes more compelling the more it is worn.
